THE CURRICULUM DEVELOPMENT PROCESS

Under Section 6 of the Schools Act the Minister of Education has legal responsibility for prescribing the program of studies, instructional organization, and instructional materials for the public schools. According to this section of the Act, the Minister

(a) may prescribe or approve

  (i) the instructional organization and courses for all school districts,
  (ii) evaluation procedures for instructional courses prescribed under clause (i), and
  (iii) for any school district, pilot, experimental and summer school programs and courses;

(b) may prescribe or approve instructional materials and apparatus for use in the schools; and

(c) may approve or recommend books for school libraries.

In the development of the public school curriculum, the Department of Education recognizes the importance of input and advice from those directly associated with public school instruction, and also those who have special interests in public school curriculum. Under Section 3 of the Schools Act and Regulation 80-100, provision is made for a formal advisory committee framework to advise on curriculum and instruction.

Since 1938 the Minister of Education has had advisory groups on provincial education. The present structure provides for two provincial curriculum advisory committees (one for each official language). The P.C.A.C. (anglophone) consists of nine members nominated by appropriate organizations involved in public education in the Province. The educational groups represented on the committee include the Department of Education, teachers, trustees, school superintendents, school supervisors, universities, Advanced Education, and the Home and School Federation. The Director of Program Development and Implementation represents the Department of Education and also serves as executive secretary.

Regulation 80-100 also makes provision for the establishment of curriculum development advisory committees, task forces, and working groups to provide input and assistance on curriculum design and development at all levels and of the public school system. These committees are normally composed of a consultant from the Program Development and Implementation Branch, public school teachers, district supervisors, and Advanced Education and university personnel -- all of whom are named by the Minister of Education. The New Brunswick Teachers Association also names a liaison representative to each curriculum development advisory committee. The work of the curriculum development committees, working groups and task forces, including curriculum writing, is initiated and coordinated by the Director and Staff of the Program Development and Implementation Branch.

During the review and development period (which usually extends from one to three years for a particular subject area and/or level), pilot projects, experimental classes and field testing of programs are carried out in a representative group of schools. Following this process, programs developed by the curriculum development advisory committees are recommended through the Director of Program Development and Implementation to the Provincial Curriculum Advisory Committee for consideration and recommendation to the Minister.

The Provincial Curriulum Advisory Committee normally meets at least twice a year to consider program proposals and related instructional matters. Following recommendation by the committee, the executive secretary presents a description of new and revised programs and a listing of new instructional materials to the Minister of Education for written approval.

The dissemination of information on new and/or revised programs occurs early in the calendar year prior to September implementation. This information flow includes the provision of curriculum guides, samples of new textbooks, and related support materials for all appropriate district and school personnel. In addition, all new prescribed materials, as well as those in continuing use, are listed in the Catalogue of Instructional Materials which is published and distributed annually by the Instructional Resources Branch.

The Department recognizes the inservice preparation of those involved in implementing curriculum at the local level as a vital and essential component of introducing any significant curricular change. To this end, various models are used, including provincial workshops and seminars, regional inservice sessions, and school-based inservice.
